Location

Six Mile Bottom is a small rural hamlet located in Cambridgeshire, approximately six miles southeast of Cambridge city centre. It offers a peaceful countryside setting benefitting from a convenience store within the village itself, and nearby towns such as Newmarket and Mildenhall provide essential services, shops, and pubs. The area is well-connected by road, with Newmarket just 5 miles away and with the A11 motorway providing easy access to Cambridge (around 10-12 miles away), Ely (about 20 miles), and Bury St Edmunds (approximately 20 miles). For broader amenities, residents can travel to Cambridge, known for its university, historic sites, and vibrant cultural scene, or to nearby towns offering various retail, dining, and recreational facilities.
